

CV eller ansøgning

CV og ansøgning er opgavetyper, som er oplagte at bruge i forbindelse med fremmedsprog i erhvervsuddannelserne. For hold, hvor fremmedsprogsundervisningen ligger i grundforløbet, er det som regel relevant at skrive ansøgninger, men hvis fremmedsprogsundervisningen ligger i hovedforløbet, er det langt mere relevant at fokusere på CV-skrivning. Det vil sige, at eleverne skal lære at skrive et CV, finde og beskrive sine personlige formelle og uformelle kompetencer og diskutere brugen af et CV i forhold til branche- og erhvervsområder.

Emnet CV/ansøgning kan afsluttes med, at alle elever laver noget skriftligt arbejde, eller de kan gennemføre rollespil. Kravene kan og skal differentieres i forhold til den enkelte elevs niveau, se eksempel nedenfor.

Why write a CV? (gloseøvelse)

The purpose of writing a CV is to secure an interview with a(fremtidig) company. To(forbedre) your chances of reaching that crucial(samtale), you must point out your skills and experience effectively and(kommunikere) very clearly why you are suitable for the job. A good and effective CV is more than just a(salgs papir) with a number of facts, it is a marketing document, which shows and matches your(færdigheder) and experience to the job description and requirements of the company. The CV is your personal specification; it documents your(kunnen) and shows the reader what you are capable of. Therefore it is(vigtigt) how the CV is written, which information it contains and in which format it is presented. Your CV must be accompanied by a(ansøgning).

CV is an (forkortelse) of Curriculum Vitae, which means “course of life”. An(arbejdsgiver) may have received hundreds of applications for a post and from those applications he or she will finally choose maybe only ten for interviews. Very often the final(valg) for the interview comes down to the CV. A well written CV will improve your chances of being invited for an interview. During the interview the employer asks you many(spørgsmål) and the questions will be linked to the information given in your CV. Remember that the employer only has information about you from your letter of application and the CV. Obviously, you must make sure that you know(præcist) what information you put in your CV. In the selection process following the interview, the employer might once again look at the CVs in order to remember the different(ansøgere) and their abilities while adding the impressions they made in their interviews. Therefore, it is crucial to your success that the CV is written in an effective way.

Interview	selling document	skills	vital
employer	improve	future	abilities
abbreviation	exactly	choice
questions	communicate
letter of application			